

The Grand Project

An Invitation

The Grand Project

The time has come to do something about the state of our world. We are truly standing at the edge of the abyss. If we fail this time, we will lose much more than a good and alto short life namely the chance of making the greatest of all our dreams ever come true.

However, the time to do something about the state of the world has already arrived, several times. The idealists, the dreamers, and the visionaries of the past have already failed time after time, no one mentioned no one forgotten. Their failures were, however, not absolute nor final. Their efforts made ideas survive, ideas of a better life in a better world.

We, the human race, do make some progress although it's not a steady state of progress. Existential crises pop up now and then. We must make sure to handle those crises. Foremost we must prevent mutual destruction.

Humanity should not strive for an alto common value base, just for mutual respect between nations.

With the opinions briefly declared we'll turn the attention to the human potential, an immense potential. As the saying goes, our entire history will seem like the blink of an eye compared to the universe. And it might be less than so if we don't play our cards smartly. Why care? We'll all be dead soon enough and others will have come. It's their problem, isn't it? Not according to our opinions.

Why not investigate how far our gathered intelligence can take us instead of indulging in destructivity and degeneration? Therefore we are about to launch a project of never before seen dimensions.

The goal of the project is almost unreachable. But just almost. That's the keyword. It's a quest of immense dimensions addressing a problem that concerns every conscious being, namely death.

Let's lay the foundation for civilization, that one day will have the power to bring all the dead back, you included. It will be the most remarkable project ever. Even a failure will be magnificent. Only giving up is not an option.

That's it. We intend to start the project of bringing all dead back, by our own hands.

Is it possible? We can only say, that's it almost impossible, not entirely impossible.

Arguments for and against this project are given in The Manifesto. There you'll also find the concepts, our assumptions about the world, and ideas on how to, perhaps, make it real, someday.

It's not at all a belief system. It's a plan. Let's condense it into an old-fashioned sentence, a core message of great potential.

Our endeavor, the highest possible, is the resurrection of every sentient being who ever lived, through our efforts, to an extraordinary life without limits, except limits that prevent contradictions with the first parts of the statement.

You are invented to take part in this project. Inform yourself about our worldview and concepts in detail. Read the manifesto Resurrection through Science.

Where to find the manifesto?

ISBN: 9781005211868

<https://www.smashwords.com/books/view/1143533>

<https://books.apple.com/us/author/magnus-nilsson/id256919246>

<https://www.barnesandnoble.com/w/resurrection-through-science-magnus-nilsson/1141388571>

<https://www.barnesandnoble.com/w/resurrection-through-science-magnus-nilsson/1141388571>

<https://www.gandhi.com.mx/resurrection-through-science>

<https://www.chapters.indigo.ca/en-ca/books/contributor/author/magnus-nilsson/>

<https://www.chapters.indigo.ca/en-ca/books/contributor/author/magnus-nilsson/>

Webpage <https://ordoterminalis.one/>

© Magnus Nilsson